

Catholic Super CEO Frank Pegan To Attend United Nations Climate Change Conference in Le Bourget

Frank Pegan to Commit Support from Australian and New Zealand Investors

Catholic Super's CEO and Investor Group on Climate Change (IGCC) Chair Frank Pegan will represent Australia and New Zealand at the upcoming United Nations Climate Change Conference COP21 (November 30 - December 11) in Le Bourget, France, to pledge support from local institutional investors for comprehensive climate policies.

The conference is expected to deliver an agreement on climate change, applicable to all, to keep global warming below 2°C.

In Paris next week, Frank has been invited to showcase Catholic Super investment practices that can be adopted and the role that investors can play to influence regulators, companies and others in the financial sector to align incentives in favour of a low carbon and climate resilient economy.

Catholic Super is one of Australia's leading superannuation funds and a recognised global leader in the pursuit of investment opportunities that support the move to lower carbon reliance and a more resilient economy. As Catholic Super's CEO Frank is passionate about the global transition away from carbon in order to provide economic, social and environmental benefits for the world's population.

Last year in his capacity of Chair of the IGCC, Frank addressed world leaders at the UN Climate Summit in New York, calling for bold and consistent policies for global capital markets.

To date Catholic Super has invested over half a billion dollars in environmentally sustainable client solutions.

"For Catholic Super, our investment approach is pragmatic and from the outset is about risk and achieving returns for our members. We invest in opportunities that meet return requirements whilst also supporting the low carbon transition," said Catholic Super CEO Frank Pegan.
