Disclosure

Your Duty of Disclosure

Before you enter into a life insurance contract, you have a duty to tell the insurer anything that you know, or could reasonably be expected to know, which may affect their decision to insure you and on what terms. You have this duty until the insurer agrees to insure you. You have the same duty before you extend, vary or reinstate the contract.

You do not need to tell the insurer anything that:

- reduces the risk they insure you for; or
- is common knowledge; or
- they know or should know as an insurer; or
- they waive your duty to tell them about.

If you do not tell the insurer something

In exercising the following rights, the insurer may consider whether different types of cover can constitute separate contracts of life insurance. If they do, they may apply the following rights separately to each type of cover.

If you do not tell the insurer anything you are required to, and they would not have insured you if you had told them, they may avoid the contract within 3 years of entering into it.

If the insurer chooses not to avoid the contract, they may, at any time, reduce the amount you have been insured for. This would be worked out using a formula that takes into account the premium that would have been payable if you had told them everything you should have. However, if the contract has a surrender value, or provides cover on death, the insurer may only exercise this right within 3 years of entering into the contract.

If the insurer chooses not to avoid the contract or reduce the amount you have been insured for, they may, at any time vary the contract in a way that places them in the same position they would have been in if you had told them everything you should have. However, this right does not apply if the contract has a surrender value or provides cover on death.

If your failure to tell the insurer is fraudulent, they may refuse to pay a claim and treat the contract as if it never existed.

Step 3 – Sign the form

I declare that:

- I have read and understood the eligibility criteria in Step 1 of this form and I am eligible for Introductory Insurance.
- The answers to all questions and the declarations on this form are true and correct (including those not in my own handwriting).
- I have read and understood the most recent Product Disclosure Statement and Insurance guide.
- I understand and consent to my information being collected, disclosed and used in the manner set out in this form.

I acknowledge that:

- If I do not complete this application correctly, or I do not sign and date this form, my previous cover will remain in force.
- Insurance cover will only be provided on the terms and conditions set out in the contract of insurance with the insurer and as agreed between the Fund and the insurer from time to time.
- I will be bound by the terms and conditions of the Trust Deed governing the fund.
